

In 2015, the ACP celebrated its centenary. The college, which has a membership of more than 143,000 and is the largest medical specialty organisation in the USA, is not formally affiliated with the RCP, but the organisations share many key values: a commitment to improving the quality of patient care, a passion for education and a determination to advocate for physicians.

Although differences in organisation, funding, priorities, budgets and patient populations might make the US health system seem worlds apart from the NHS, physicians from San

How has Obamacare affected the work of